LACKMANN CULINARY SERVICES AT HOFSTRA UNIVERSITY, CELEBRATES GRAND RE-OPENING OF THE DAVID S. MACK HALL UNIVERSITY CLUB

Foodservice provider Lackmann Culinary Services launches a two-phase Grand Opening Celebration to honor and promote the newly renovated University Club.

New York, 2007- Lackmann Culinary Services opened the doors on October 16th, to the newly renovated Hofstra University Club. The University Club was built in 1965 and the recent renovation transformed the Club into an elegant, modern venue comprised of three main rooms. Ala carte dining and a lunch buffet are held daily in the Grand Ballroom which seats up to 185. Two smaller, yet spacious rooms were designed for conferences and private meetings with a variety of catering options available.

On December 5th, 2007 Lackmann Culinary Services will be celebrating the re-opening of the renovated University Club with a members only celebration. Membership club benefits include access to ala carte dining, waived room rental fees and complimentary monthly events. A new Catering Guide designed just for the University Club will be launched at the event accompanied by food sampling, tours and much more.

On January 23rd 2008 Lackmann Culinary Services will be hosting a Grand Opening Event to the public, showcasing the University Club as a gathering space for small and large functions. This event will include food stations, passed hors d'oeuvres, raffles and much more. Lackmann Culinary Services will be promoting the University Club catering guide as well as the website www.hofstrauniversityclub.com, which is currently in production.
